 Vice President and General Manager
 Hughes Aircraft Corporation
 Culver City, California

Dear Mr. Hyland:

I wish to express my sincere appreciation to you for the valuable advice recently rendered to us on the intercontinental ballistic missile problem.

Separating yourself from the other important and conflicting demands on your time to aid us in this area of national concern, without doubt, was only accomplished at considerable personal inconvenience to you. Your findings and recommendations however, have been of significant value and have since been reflected both in our intelligence product and in other actions relative to improvements in our collection systems.

Again, my sincere thanks.
